The Anabaptist Vision 1944-1994

Brief Statement of Mennonite Doctrine

This is a summary statement based on the confession of faith adopted by Mennonite General Conference in 1963. For the complete text see the Mennonite Confession of Faith. (Herald Press, paper, $2.50, in Canada $3.25)

1. We believe in one God eternally existing as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

2. We believe that God has revealed himself in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, the inspired Word of God, and supremely in his Son, the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. We believe that in the beginning God created all things by his Son. He made man in the divine image, with free will, moral character, and a spiritual nature.

4. We believe that man fell into sin, bringing depravity and death upon the race; that as sinner, man is self-centered and self-willed, unwilling and unable to break with sin.

5. We believe that there is one Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus, who died to redeem us from sin and arose for our justification.

6. We believe that salvation is by grace through faith in Christ, a free gift bestowed by God on those who repent and believe.

7. We believe that the Holy Spirit convicts of sin, effects the new birth, gives guidance in life, empowers for service, and enables perseverance in faith and holiness.

8. We believe that the church is the body of Christ, the brotherhood of the redeemed, a disciplined people obedient to the Word of God, and a fellowship of love, intercession, and healing.

9. We believe that Christ commissioned the church to go into all the world, making disciples of all the nations, and ministering to every human need.

10. We believe it is the will of God that there should be ministers to teach the Word, to serve as leaders, to administer the ordinances, to lead the church in the exercise of discipline, and to serve as pastors and teachers.

11. We believe that those who repent and believe should be baptized with water as a symbol of baptism with the Spirit, cleansing from sin, and commitment to Christ.

12. We believe that the church should observe the communion of the Lord's Supper as a symbol of his broken body and shed blood, and of the fellowship of his church, until his return.

13. We believe in the washing of the saints' feet as a symbol of brotherhood, cleansing, and service, and in giving the right hand of fellowship and the holy kiss as symbols of Christian love.

14. We believe that God has established unique roles for man and woman, symbolized by man's bared head in praying and prophesying, and by woman's veiled head.

15. We believe that Christian marriage is intended by God to be the union of one man and one woman for life, and that Christians shall marry only in the Lord.

16. We believe that Christians are not to be conformed to the world, but should seek to conform to Christ in every area of life.

17. We believe that Christians are to be open and transparent in life, ever speaking the truth, and employing no oaths.

18. We believe that it is the will of God for Christians to refrain from force and violence in human relations and to show Christian love to all men.

19. We believe that the state is ordained of God to maintain order in society, and that Christians should honor rulers, be subject to authorities, witness to the state, and pray for governments.

20. We believe that at death the unsaved enter into everlasting punishment and the saved into conscious bliss with Christ, who is coming again, and will raise the dead, sit in judgment, and bring in God's everlasting kingdom.

About the cover: Fifty years ago, in 1944, Harold S. Bender (1897-1962) focused the character and identity of the Anabaptist/Mennonite movement by stating that the core of the faithful church is discipleship, community and nonresistant love.

Foreword

The Mennonite Publishing House is pleased to present the 1994 Mennonite Yearbook. This volume reports the current leadership, organizational entities, and the statistical record of the life of the Mennonite Church (MC) in Canada and the United States. Local, conference, churchwide, and worldwide dimensions are included. The Mennonite Yearbook also reflects the many ways in which the Mennonite Church interacts with, and relates to, the broader Mennonite family of Anabaptist church bodies.

Annual Historical Theme

In 1994 we pause to recognize the churchly understandings that have shaped us in recent decades. Fifty years ago in 1944, Harold S. Bender, an emerging teacher and scholar, summarized core perspectives that identified the Mennonite family among the many churchly traditions in church bodies around the world. Bender and the Anabaptist Vision, which he articulated, are reflected in this volume in several ways.

The front cover photo features Bender in the early years of the Vision. In the feature article, "Harold S. Bender and the Anabaptist Vision," Leonard Gross assesses the era of the Vision and how it has influenced the church during the five decades since its formulation. Finally, the outside back cover lists several key titles through which readers may gain further insight into the enduring quality of this Vision.

Mennonite Church, 1994

In the other feature article, James M. Lapp, general secretary of Mennonite Church General Board, lifts up issues that are current in Mennonite church life. Lapp identifies areas with which the church of today needs to deal in order to maintain its vitality and its message.

This volume

In this volume users will note that we have continued our annual schedule. The pace of church life requires us to keep information as current as possible. Readers will also observe that the basic features of the Yearbook continue. And, as is usual, there are some changes. These include the following:

First, in the "Directory of North American Congregations," Bergthaler, Chortizer, Old Order Mennonite, and Sommerfelder congregations; and a more up-to-date listing of Hutterite colonies are included this year.

Second, in the "Directory of Other Mennonite Conferences," two new bodies, Bethel Conservative Fellowship and Hope Mennonite Fellowship, are included for the first time. Both groups emerged out of the unaffiliated listing of previous years.

Third, in the listing of conferences, slightly more detail is included in the committee membership in order to identify those who are serving in this way.

Fourth, in the "Directory of Mennonite Church Organizations," the Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries entry has been expanded to more accurately reflect its level of activity in the life of the church.

Fifth, the Mennonite World Conference directory has been reformulated to reflect the new way members of this world body relate to one another.

A look at the numbers

At the end of 1993, conferences related to Mennonite Church General Assembly included 105,525 members (a net gain of 1,668 since one year ago and 4962 since 1985) in 1169 congregations (a net gain of 4 in the last year and 95 since 1985). In addition to these members, there are 7,743 who are members of other Mennonite bodies and 2,367 who are members of other Christian bodies who relate to MC congregations. (Using the full membership of 115,594 as a base, the average size of Mennonite congregations is 99 members; median size is 53 members.) Add 59,650 members in 840 MC-related congregations overseas (1992 totals) to the North American numbers; then one discovers that the inclusive worldwide Mennonite Church family counts 165,179 members in 2,009 congregations who live in 39 countries around the globe.

In 1991, giving to the church averaged $882.50 per member. In 1992 the level of giving increased to $909.60 per member. In 1985 our per member giving was $615.33.

Size of congregations, including church plantings, range from 58 with no members to 4 that are 700 members and above. Congregations are located in all sizes of communities; however, more than half (584) are part of those communities whose population is less than 50,000.

The 17 conferences who consider themselves to be part of the Mennonite Church family but have chosen not to participate in the program of Mennonite Church General Assembly number 17,875 members (a gain of 833 in the last year) in 369 congregations (a gain of 17 in the last year).

The Mennonite Church 1994

by James M Lapp
General Secretary, Mennonite Church

Ecclesiology and the 1990s

Ecclesiology is shaping up as a critical issue for the 1990s. Some writers suggest the need to reinvent the church for the twenty-first century. New forms of church are being pursued to replace old paradigms which appear tired or irrelevant. Mennonites are not sheltered from such trends. Meetinghouses have given way to church buildings, programs increasingly reflect marketing concerns, and worship styles often fit predictable patterns not specific to any one denomination.

For Mennonites discussions about ecclesiology strike a vital nerve. "One of the most characteristic features of Anabaptism is its church concept," states the Mennonite Encyclopedia (Vol.1, p. 594). Fifty years ago (1944), Harold S. Bender in his statement of the Anabaptist Vision identified the church as a voluntary community of believers and a key ingredient in that vision. Our faith is richly communal in character and substance. Do we need to join the quest to reinvent the church?

Numerous issues feed the current interest in ecclesiology. First, after an unprecedented era of institution building, there is serious reappraisal going on both about our ability to sustain these institutions and the ways they dominate the shape of the contemporary church. Second, incumbent to reappraisal of churchly institutions are funding concerns which provide additional momentum to the ecclesiological discussions. Third, the continuing exploration of integration between the Mennonite Church and the General Conference Mennonite Church focuses important polity differences which need attention Fourth, the growing strength and vitality of our Mennonite churches around the world require us to review significant aspects of being church. Finally, every generation needs to think seriously on the biblical/theological nature of the church to help shed irrelevance and bring about spiritual renewal in life and mission.

In this brief essay, I can touch on only a few substantive issues about the church which deserve broader dialogue and study. I wish to focus the topic around three broad themes.

Location of the Church

A pragmatic issue which at the present time begs for attention is where church is experienced. The bylaws of our denomination state that, "the congregation is the primary unit of Mennonite Church organization." Back in 1971 when the bylaws were adopted, this statement likely provided a needed corrective to the firm authority of conferences in previous decades. Now some people fear the danger of extreme congregationalism and suggest another corrective is needed.

The deeper issue is whether church should ever be solely equated with congregation. The New Testament spoke equally freely of the church in the city or region as it did of the household or local fellowship. The draft of the new "Confession of Faith in Mennonite Perspective" sent to all congregations for study states:

"The church of Christ exists simultaneously as the local congregation which maintains relationships with other congregations, as a broader network of congregations, and as the worldwide community of faith (Article VIII)."

One major challenge for congregations in the 1990s is to maintain and nurture relationships in a broader congregational network. The pressures to excel locally in program and mission are strong. The most critical concern is not sustenance of conference and denominational programs, but loss of congregations' spiritual vitality that accompanies tunnel vision. As an increasingly minority presence in the global Mennonite family, we need the enrichment of our brothers and sisters in the other cultures and nations.

Churchwide agencies face the difficult task of how to link up with congregationalism as a positive force and how to provide creative ways for local churches to engage in networks with other churches in mission. The forms for such new ventures are gradually being invented. It is hoped that implementation of a fresh partnership between agencies and congregations will result in local ownership and effective global ministry.

Locus of Authority

An issue closely related to location is the question of authority in the church. In the middle decades of this century, area conferences exercised considerable authority in the life of congregations, including the details and practices of individual members. Today's conferences generally hold authority in two areas: first, granting and removing ministerial credentials and, second, confession of faith which congregations are expected to endorse.

At the present time, new questions are being raised about the role and authority of conferences when concerns arise about the biblical/Mennonite faithfulness of a given church. Generally our conferences have accorded congregations the freedom to determine their own stance on issues of diversity in the church (women in pastoral ministry is a recent prime example). Do issues exist on which conferences are not ready to grant local determination to congregations? Cultivating meaningful patterns of authority rooted in spiritual discernment and mutual address rather than threat or fear is a frontier for conferences and congregations in the 1990s.

A difference exists between the Mennonite Church and the General Conference Mennonite Church on the issue of authority. While the GCMC values personal discipline, it has no strong tradition of disciplining congregations perceived to be errant. The GCMC attributes fuller authority to the local church and primarily an administrative or consultive role to the area conference. How will we address this polity difference in the event of integration?

Form of the Church

Here and there new language is circulating about the form of the church, especially in the congregational setting. Most congregations seem to be on a trajectory toward stronger and more highly refined programs. Such program-oriented churches value effective administrative leaders who can articulate vision and strategize to fulfill that vision. This in many ways fits the corporate culture of contemporary life in our society.

Increasingly our leaders in home ministries are looking with favor on the development of cell group churches. In place of highly orchestrated programs are cell groups where the primary initiative for nurture and evangelism takes place. The weekly congregational gathering offers a setting for corporate worship and preaching, but the vital center of the church is in the cells. Instead of administrative strategizing, the pastor(s) nurture(s) the cell group leaders who in turn shepherd members in their care. The cell group church is highly oriented toward outreach and the inclusion of new believers.

Here are two fundamentally different approaches to church. Our Mennonite heritage emphasizes koinonia and mutuality. Many of our churches have small groups although often they lack an evangelistic concern. Our program-oriented churches offer many significant benefits to members and to the denomination. Might the cell group church model also offer a dynamic way to experience church that theologically fits us? It is hoped that dialogue and testing can occur as we explore these (and other) models of church for the twenty-first century.

Conclusion

In his 1960 Conrad Grebel Lectures on the church, Harold S. Bender warned of two dangers which threaten the integrity of the body of Christ: individualism and institutionalism. Allow me to add acculturation as a third danger: the strong inclination to imitate contemporary Protestantism and become generic evangelical churches. Has God preserved the Mennonite Church for a particular purpose in the twenty-first century? Can we retain and attractively exhibit a sense of being an alternate people in the midst of an increasingly individualistic, violent, and hedonistic culture? While this counter-cultural approach to being church may appear to blunt our growth (although this can be debated), it offers an option to those who are weary of Christendom as they have known it.

Sixteenth-century Anabaptists set out to restore the church to New Testament ideals. In the 1960s renewal was the watchword for leaders. Now reinventing the church is in vogue. In each age we are called to redefine again who we are and what we are called to be as the followers of Jesus Christ. In 1994, let us vigorously pursue the vision for a high ecclesiology and not allow indiscriminate acculturation to deter us from God's call and purposes. ■ our thanks to congregational statisticians who provided detailed information about their churches. Their hours of labor made possible this important record for the broader church. We hope that a byproduct of this process will be a clearer picture of the nature of the congregations of which they are a part. Thanks also to the representatives of Mennonite conferences, churchwide boards, and agencies who supplied information about their programs. Finally, special thanks to Lara Hall who, as management trainee at Mennonite Publishing House this year, gained a fresh awareness of the Mennonite Church and how our common organizational life is experienced. Thanks also to many other Mennonite Publishing House staff who, as usual, worked together under an intensive schedule to make this volume available to you in a timely fashion.

Harold S. Bender and the Anabaptist Vision

Leonard Gross
Goshen, Indiana

Impelling visions

Through the centuries certain statements created in times of confusion and conflict have caught the imagination of our people, and as such became for a time an impelling vision of hope which helped pull the movement through onto more solid ground. Such statements came at crucial times in our Anabaptist-Mennonite history: at Zurich in 1524-25 at the time of the birth of Anabaptism; at Schleitheim in 1527 when the movement seemed to be going off into all directions, but also in 1575, 1702, 1841, 1896 and, last but not least, in 1944 with the creation of Harold S. Bender's "Anabaptist Vision."[1]

Each of these statements dealt with the Anabaptist Vision—of disciples of Christ, gathered in his Spirit, who sought to live out his gospel of peace. In 1702, for example, part of the vision ran:

> The characteristics of the true church are: the true fruits of conversion; the avoidance of sins; living in goodness, righteousness and truth according to the teaching of Christ and his apostles; having the right faith in Jesus Christ through obedience to the divine word; practicing his holy ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper; confessing God and Jesus Christ candidly before the people; holding to a fiery brotherly love among one another; and maintaining the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace and through taking up the cross and the true discipleship of Christ.[2]

A triad of ideas—discipleship, the community dynamic of mutuality and love, and the overriding spirit of peace—are central motifs in this 1702 Anabaptist vision, in a manner that is more than coincidental, when in the year 1944 these very same themes surfaced again.

Harold S. Bender's Anabaptist Vision, was also a vision of faithful disciples of Jesus, gathered in the name and spirit of the Christ of peace. It cut through myriad doctrinal overlays that had accrued over the decades—especially after the transformation of the Mennonite church from a German culture to an American culture a half-century earlier. It was, at its base, conservative in its attempt to conserve the best of our faith-tradition; it was liberal in being open to testing any and all new scholarship that impinged upon the quest toward an honest portrayal of our Anabaptist-Mennonite past. And it was this vision that permeated Bender's life and thought throughout his lifetime. In fact, it had to be honestly conservative as well as liberal, in order to jump back through the dominating progressive era of the teens and twenties, when the Mennonite Church had leaned so heavily upon the new religious trends of the day. This included a form of Fundamentalism which, with its emphasis upon individualism and nationalism, endangered at the core our traditional witness of peace, community, and discipleship. Although seemingly so very "biblical," such doctrines, when seen in the light of their social context, stood antithetically opposed to certain traits that had been part and parcel of the tides of Anabaptist history all the way back to Anabaptist beginnings in 1525. Yet this danger remained largely unrecognized by many Mennonites during the first four decades of this century.

But before dealing in more depth with this issue, and how fifty years hence we ought to view these things, we need first to introduce the man who gave us the Anabaptist Vision, Harold S. Bender.

Who was Harold S. Bender?

In the 1990s there is a generation or two of those who no longer know of Harold S. Bender. Who was this man, and why do we, in the year 1994, choose to commemorate him and his views? The following are brief summaries of his story:

Harold S. Bender was born in Elkhart, Indiana, in 1897, at a time when Elkhart was at the hub of the Mennonite Church (MC), thanks to John F. Funk's Herald of Truth / Herold der Wahrheit and the other programs in publishing, relief work, mission work, mutual aid, and education that developed there in the 1880s and 1890s. In 1923 Harold married Elizabeth Horsch, and the family was blessed with two children, Mary Eleanor and Nancy. Elizabeth would prove to be a powerful ally to Harold, given her uncanny ability of honing the English language and her keen adeptness in the use of foreign languages. From 1924 to 1962, Bender was professor at Goshen College in church history, Bible, and sociology. He was dean of Goshen College, 1931-44, and dean of Goshen College Biblical Seminary, 1944-62 (the year of his death).

Bender's birth coincided with the Mennonite renaissance or awakening of the 1880s and 1890s, which was, in part, the result of a shift in language from German to English. Mennonites during this era began accepting much within their new English-speaking, North American culture, including higher education and a renewed interest in missions at home and abroad. Bender's own interest in education should be seen in this light.

Bender's formative years, on the other hand, came during the time of a new generation of Mennonite Church (MC) leaders who attempted to establish a new Mennonite orthodoxy in doctrine and dress, with a certain codification of both, and imbued to some degree by Fundamentalism. Daniel Kauffman was the major leader at the time (ca. 1898-1930). His books, Manual of Bible Doctrine (1898); Bible Doctrine (1914); and Doctrines of the Bible (1928, available in paperback, Herald Press, 640 pages; $14.95, $19.50 in Canada), became the definitive word for many within the church during those decades.

The importance of Bender's work

The significance of Bender may be seen in part in terms of how he dealt with these new trends, both Fundamentalist and Liberal, within the church. Bender chose a route and approach to vision that differed from both. His vision stood in contrast to the Kauffman view of doctrine and dress, not so much in criticizing it directly, but rather by circumventing it. Bender chose to express the Christian faith through the historical process and attempted to rediscover the Anabaptist vision of biblical faith and life. Bender did not believe that he was creating a new theology but was returning to and recovering an old faith: that of his own spiritual ancestors. In 1927 he created a journal, the Mennonite Quarterly Review (MQR), and in 1929 he founded a scholarly series, Studies in Anabaptist and Mennonite History, writing the first volume himself (Two Centuries of American Mennonite Literature). A dissertation on Conrad Grebel, one of the founders of Anabaptism (1935, published 1950); a biography of Menno Simons (1936); Mennonite Origins in Europe (1942); Anabaptist Vision (1944); the Mennonite Encyclopedia (4 volumes, 1955-59); Biblical Revelation and Inspiration (1959); and These Are My People (1962)—these indicate the scope of Bender's efforts to bring about a return to the Anabaptist faith as he understood it. Throughout these decades he edited the MQR and published many shorter essays therein, in other scholarly journals, and in church papers.

Bender's leadership in the life of the Mennonite Church (MC), worldwide Mennonitism, and in ecumenical contacts was evident, in part, through the long list of committees and organizations in which he was active. Central in Bender's vision, on all levels of interaction, was his concern for the way of peace and love as being integral to the path Christians should take.[3]

Critique of Anabaptist Vision

During a score of years, up to the time of the stormy era of the Vietnam generation, there was a positive resonance with Bender's Anabaptist Vision on the part of a growing number of Mennonites and "outside" Reformation scholars alike. The Festschrift, The Recovery of the Anabaptist Vision, by Guy F. Hershberger published in 1957 (out of print), is a powerful testimonial to this development. The Anabaptist Vision had become the byword throughout the Mennonite Church. And the essay is still available in continuing reprints, under its own title, Anabaptist Vision (Herald Press, 48 pages; $1.95 ($2.75 in Canada).

History has its own ways, however, of bringing about change. And the Vietnam era, which by now has come and gone, has nevertheless left its profound effect on the North American culture (and beyond). The world had come to an end—or at least "a" world had come to an end. And no person living or dead as yet has been able to turn back the clock.

Books may be written about the impact of the Vietnam era upon Mennonitism, but for our purposes here, we shall simply note that a barrier was erected, thanks to the Vietnam era, so high that it is all but impossible for the Mennonites of the 1990s to understand the ethos and faith of even our recent forebears—as recently as the 1950s. Beginning in 1968, for example, the devotional covering for baptized women was no longer mandatory in the Indiana-Michigan Conference. The tremendous import of the changing reality behind this change in symbol is hard to imagine, hard to overestimate, and of the utmost significance. And this symbol and reality, combined with the conscious shift in church polity whereby in 1971 the governing body of the Mennonite Church, called Mennonite General Conference (1898-1971), died and the new General Assembly was born, signals tremendous change within the largest branch of Mennonitism. But the trends and events of the times—inner-city uprisings, peace marches, the 1968 Democratic Convention, student unrest, Woodstock, secularism, assassinations, riots, Kent State, revolution—have changed the very substance and spirit and structures of our twentieth-century Mennonite tradition. From being "neither in nor of" the world as apparently had been the case for half a century, thanks to Vietnam we seemed to be transformed into being both in and of the world by the time of the 1980s. This, at least, is what some Mennonite observers and prophets were saying and predicting at the time. But had we really sold out to the world? Or had we just possibly entered instead into a new phase of being in but not of the world round about us?

The vision in the 1990s

The question remains: In the 1990s, do we still hold to a vision that balances on the one hand the individual response (Christian discipleship), and on the other hand the corporate dimension of being the gathered, peaceful people of God? By the 1990s, some second thoughts about the substance, spirit, and structures of the Anabaptist Vision have indeed been uttered. Some people apparently are rejecting the Anabaptist Vision; some are critical of parts of it; some remain affirmative. It was, to be sure, a missive for its time, and therein are its strengths, but also its limitations.

For those who think Bender's Anabaptist Vision of 1944 went too far down the road of simplification, such would probably criticize Bender even more for stating in 1950 that it is discipleship and discipleship alone which provides the clues for finding "the central controlling idea of Anabaptist theology."[4] On the other hand, in these days when spirituality is a major byword, for those who ask about the spiritual dimension of Bender's Vision, such must of necessity read the whole of the Anabaptist Vision, as well as Bender's later further interpretations of things Anabaptist in order to do him and his ideas justice. This includes his 1950 essay, "The Anabaptist Theology of Discipleship,"[5] where Bender documents his thesis historically, and his 1961 essay, "'Walking in the Resurrection,'"[6] a description of a discipleship made possible only through the presence of the Spirit within, and without, among those individuals gathered in Christ's name.

The continuing usefulness of the Anabaptist Vision

There is, however, something of a clue as to the continuing usefulness of the Anabaptist Vision even now, after the coming of an "end of the world" in the 1960s. In 1983, at Bethlehem 83, the first joint churchwide conference of the two largest Mennonite groups, the General Conference Mennonite Church (GC) and the Mennonite Church (MC), took place. The theme chosen for this event revolved around the triad of ideas which makes up the Anabaptist Vision. Both GCs and MCs entered into this spirit and substance naturally and enthusiastically. It seemed to be a natural foundation, one which fit all the way around. No one seemed to see this as unusual, or old-fashioned, or Liberal, or Conservative. And in retrospect it seems to have filled the bill of needs. Here is a possible clue to deepening the ongoing cooperative efforts of two, still-separate Mennonite groups.

Whether anything else might be found, some day, which might serve better our ongoing purposes as a gathered people is still open to speculation, of course. In closing this essay, however, it should be noted that Harold S. Bender was not reinventing the wheel when he brought together his Vision. Rather, he looked backward through his historian's rearview mirror and, employing a well-used Mennonite tactic of old, counseled with other brothers and sisters in the faith, and finally came up with the 1944 Vision.

We would do well, in the 1990s, also to keep the rearview mirror in place, to counsel with others, and to continue in the quest for answering the question of how to be faithful to the original intent of our Creator-Savior. And here, Bender himself provides a clue to an answer; in his "In Search of a City," an adapted excerpt reads:

> In the long perspective of the four centuries that have passed since their beginnings in Switzerland and Holland, the Mennonites have often seemed to be a people without a country, wanderers upon the face of the earth, having no abiding city, seeking a City whose builder and maker is God.
> These clear-visioned, high-seeking souls purposed to build the City of God on earth. But the world would not let them, even though that world itself often professed to be also building the City of God. . . . It was to be a City in which a living Christ should dwell, a Christ of love and service, around whom should gather women and men of his spirit and purpose, among whom hatred and violence should be unknown.
> Many people have sometimes laughed, even scoffed, at these simple souls, who thought in their simplicity that it should be possible to create a fellowship of saints "without spot or wrinkle" in the midst of an evil world. But it is such scoffers and laughers who have always taken the heart out of people, and have gone on leading the world into successive systems of greed, hatred, and war, sometimes in the name of prosperity, sometimes in the name of patriotism, and sometimes in the name of religion. . . .
> In the past century and a quarter, thousands of Mennonites have found a home in the favored and tolerant commonwealths of the United States and Canada. . . . Whether in these new lands of liberty they may not face more subtle dangers of assimilation, more threatening ultimately to their way of life than the outright animosity of the hostile society of old Europe, remains to be seen.[7]

It also remains to be seen how long the Anabaptist Vision will continue to speak to us. Only time will tell, as current and future generations continue to probe the mystery of life, and the mystery of that small segment of Christianity descending from the Anabaptists of long ago.

Directory of North American Congregations

This directory lists Mennonite Church congregations alphabetically according to the country (Canada, United States, and other), state or province, and city in which they are located. This directory includes all Mennonite Church congregations listed in the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations," "Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations," "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences," and "Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies." These include Beachy Amish (BA) and Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church (EP).

Also listed in this directory are congregations affiliated with church bodies that may relate to Mennonite World Conference. These include Bergthaler Mennonite Churches (BMC), Brethren in Christ (BIC), Church of God in Christ Mennonite (CGCM), Conference of Mennonites in Canada (CMC), David Martin Old Order Mennonites (MOOM), General Conference Mennonite (GC), Evangelical Mennonite Church (EMC), Evangelical Mennonite Conference of Canada (EMCC), Evangelical Mennonite Mission Conference of Canada (EMMC), Fellowship of Evangelical Bible Churches (FEBC), Groffdale Old Order Mennonites (GOOM), Hutterian Brethren, Dariusleut (HBD), Hutterian Brethren, Lehrerleut (HBL), Hutterian Brethren, Schmiedleut (HBS), Hutterian Brethren, Woodcrest (HBW), Mennonite Brethren (MB), Ohio-Indiana Old Order Mennonites (OIOO), Ohio-Wisler Old Order Mennonites (OWOO), Old Order River Brethren (OORB), Ontario Old Order Mennonites (OOOM), Markham-Waterloo Old Order Mennonites (MWOO), Reinland Mennonite Church of Canada (RMCC), Stauffer Old Order Mennonites (SOOM), United Zion Church (UZC), Various Old Order Mennonite congregations (VOOM), and Weaverland Old Order Mennonites (WOOM). While these congregations are integrated with Mennonite Church congregations, the information about them is limited to their location, name, and affiliation.

The purpose of this directory is to provide information regarding the location of the meetinghouse. It is designed to assist readers in their efforts to find or contact the congregation at its place of meeting. This is not a mailing address. All mail should be sent to the address listed under the congregation in one of the directories listed in the first paragraph. Readers desiring to get in touch with the pastor of a congregation should follow the information provided in these same directories. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference and church body codes used.)

Effort was made to secure complete and accurate information about each congregation listed. If there are errors and/or missing data, please provide full information to the editor, Mennonite Yearbook, 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale PA 15683-1999. An example of a complete Mennonite Church congregational listing is as follows:

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412-887-8500 or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure the complete accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

Directory of Conferences and Congregations

Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically. Within each conference, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Ministerial Directory."

Conferences who do not participate in the program of the Mennonite Church General Assembly are included in the "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences."

The purpose of this directory is to provide all information necessary to contact a given congregation. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations." (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

An example of a complete congregational listing in this directory is as follows:

name of congregation — cong. number — year founded — dist./area ref. no. — city, county state/province — secondary church/ conf. affiliations — members

General Board Congregations

Mennonite Church General Board congregations are those which desire membership in the Mennonite Church but are located away from other Mennonite congregations or are in the process of developing an official conference relationship. These congregations agree to submit to the bylaws of the Mennonite Church and to the spiritual oversight provided by the General Board.

Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations

This directory lists urban councils and area organizations alphabetically. Within each organization, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with each congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Ministerial Directory."

The purpose of this directory is to identify those informal and emerging bodies which are developing within the life of the church in urban centers as well as in areas where congregations with a variety of conference affiliations and church bodies are located. Also included are those congregations identified by a common ethnic background, a common bond such as inter-Mennonite cooperation, and a common task such as church planting efforts. Most congregations are members of, and hold primary affiliation with, a Mennonite Church conference, other Mennonite or Christian body.

For an example of a complete listing in this directory see the first page of the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations."

Multi-Affiliated MC and GC Congregations

AD HOC COMMITTEE

Contact, James Schrag, 8201 Smucker Rd, Smithville OH 44677 (216 669-2697) or Tom Kauffman, 211 S Bone, Normal IL 61781 (309 452-4668)

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Congregations: Congregations listed in this group are not organizationally tied together. This entry is included in order to document the degree to which Mennonite Church congregations are related to the General Conference Mennonite Church. Since the Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada is an integrated MC-GC conference, none of it's 92 congregations and 13,660 members are included in this listing.

Organization: An ad hoc committee meets to coordinate the special concerns of MACs and to communicate those concerns to denominational leadership.

History: Since 1962, new and established congregations have affiliated with more than one Mennonite body in order to retain historic ties with the Mennonite group of origin as well as to promote Mennonite unity.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Date founded: 1987.

Purpose: An organization of representatives from Native American congregations relating to the Mennonite Church. The council meets semiannually for work on issues related to Native American Ministries, promotes leadership training and development, assists with congregational resources and seminars, serves as an advocate with conferences and churchwide agencies. Sponsors inter-tribal fellowships with a biennial assembly. It is the channel for relating to the Mennonite Indian Leaders Council and Native Ministries of Canada programs of the GC as well as to other denominational programs.

Publication: United Native Ministries Newsletter (quarterly), Editorial office: 2121 Hawthorne Dr, Elkhart IN 46517 (219 295-8530).

CHRISTIAN IDENTITY IN A HOMELESS AGE
Trackless Wastes & Stars to Steer By Michael A. King

Searching for Meaning?!

"Out of trackless wastes, Michael A. King leads us forth, wisely steering a course set by stars which do not deceive. If you have given up on the church because it is too critically closed or too uncritically open, if you have lost your direction on that perilous path called discipleship, if your house of faith is beginning to crumble, or else you haven't even yet begun to build that house, read this book."
—William H. Willimon, Dean, Duke University chapel, from the foreword

Trackless Wastes and Stars to Steer By:
Christian Identity in a Homeless Age

Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences

Not Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically by name of conference or fellowship. Within each one, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Mennonite Church Ministerial Directory."

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location or person. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations" section. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

For an example of a complete congregational listing in this directory see the first page of the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations."

Directory of Mennonite Church Organizations and Related Ministries

The ministry and mission of the Mennonite Church is carried out through boards listed below. These are supported by contributions from the membership, with exception that the program of the Mennonite Mutual Aid Board is supported by enrollment in their services and the program of the Mennonite Publication Board is supported by purchases of books, curriculum materials, magazines, as well as job printing and mailing services. Two of the associate groups—Women's Missionary and Service Commission and the United Native Ministries Council—receive their income from other than congregational offerings.

The total of the 1994 combined operating budgets of the remaining churchwide agencies (listed below) is $97,082,900. These agencies budgeted $7,269,133 as income from congregational offerings as follows: Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries, $576,610; Mennonite Board of Education, $103,000; minority leadership education, $235,000; colleges, $1,042,000; seminaries, $523,023; Mennonite Board of Missions, $4,351,000; Mennonite Church General Board, $350,000; Associate Groups—African-American Mennonite Association, $38,500; Hispanic Mennonite Convention, $50,000.

Inter-Mennonite agencies approved for churchwide support include Mennonite Central Committee and Mennonite World Conference.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Founded: 1915; reorganized 1971.
Purpose and function: The vision for Women's Missionary and Service Commission centers on the three themes of Jesus' commandment for love of God, love of neighbor and love of self. They are expressed in three areas as spiritual development, missions and service, and women supporting women. A monthly magazine, annual program and resource, retreats, conferences and seminars, cash and material aid projects, scholarships, and networking are tools and methods used to encourage and carry out this vision.
Fiscal year: February 1 to January 31.
Publications: WMSC Voice, eleven issues per year; Program Resource, annual, published jointly with Women in Mission (GC).

Programs administered: Books Abroad and At Home; college, seminary, and graduate scholarships for women; new book allowance for overseas workers.

Urban Councils and Area Church Organizations

These organizations include cooperative efforts of congregations of more than one conference or church body as well as conference level entities that include more than one conference or church body. Some of these relationships are recognized by the Mennonite Church General Board as successors to the regional structures discontinued in 1983. Others are emerging programs and activities developing in geographic areas such as large urban centers. The General Board serves as a channel of communication to the Mennonite Church General Assembly for some of these organizations. Organizations are listed by area and name.

VIRGINIA

Fellowship of Concerned Mennonites (FCM), 1516 Hawthorn Ct, Harrisonburg VA 22801 (703 434-4007), George R Brunk II, executive director.

Founded 1984. The Fellowship is a coalition of like-minded Mennonites whose concerns focus upon the basic biblical tenets of faith which have been the foundations of the sector of the reformation of the sixteenth century known as the Anabaptist Movement, with special interest in that segment of Anabaptism called Mennonite. The Fellowship was formed because certain of those basic biblical tenets of faith long held as foundational more currently are being questioned, modified, or negated, and, because by general acknowledgment, the Mennonite Church membership contains a wide range of conservative elements on the one hand and liberal elements on the other, with the latter seemingly gaining the ascendency, and, because at issue is the control of thought through the schools and through the publication of literature, and, because in the present confusion of ideas, there is need for a fundamental, distinctive, proportional, and consistent articulation of faith. Walter Beachy, president.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Date founded: 1905.

Purpose and function: The primary role of the Mennonite Board of Education is to consider Mennonite Church educational objectives and to provide for the best use of personnel and financial resources in meeting these objectives. It is responsible to the church for Hesston College, Goshen College, Eastern Mennonite College and Seminary, and Goshen Biblical Seminary. In relation to these schools, the Mennonite Board of Education appoints the presidents and institutional board members; establishes broad basic policies; reviews and approves institutional goals and objectives, long-range program and budget planning, new academic programs; makes specific policy decisions as needed, especially on relationships among Mennonite educational institutions; and works with Mennonite Church General Board in communicating financial needs of the schools to the church.

The Mennonite Board of Education works in a coordinating and consulting relationship with the 14 high schools of the Mennonite Secondary Education Council and with the 25 schools of the Mennonite Elementary Education Council.

The board meets quarterly, with the annual meeting in December or January.

Fiscal year: July 1-June 30.

1994 Special Days: Church School Day, February 6; Back to School Day, August 28.

1992-93 budget: $520,495. Additional funds in the amount of $280,147 are handled for minority education (including the High-Aim program).

Staff: full-time equivalent professional staff of 4.74.

LEGAL ENTITIES

Mennonite Mutual Aid provides insurance products, financial services, charitable programs, and educational resources to help Mennonites and related groups practice the biblical principles of mutual aid and stewardship. To accomplish this, MMA programs operate through eight legal entities. The MMA Board of Directors serves as the board for each of the following:

Mennonite Mutual Aid, Inc.—Vehicle for office facilities, salary administration, and coordination of other MMA entities.

The Mennonite Foundation, Inc.—Receives, manages, and distributes gifts of cash and property for Mennonite conferences and institutions.

Mennonite Mutual Aid Association—Fraternal benefit association; provides medical expense and life plans for individuals, congregations and institutions, and retirement plans for people with earned income.

Mennonite Automobile Aid, Inc.—Comprehensive and collision coverages, avoids litigation.

MMA Insurance Co.—Provides group health and life insurance plans for Mennonite employers.

Mennonite Retirement Trust—Trusteeship which provides church workers retirement plan.

Menno Insurance Service, Inc.—Stock corporation owned by MMA; provides employee benefits management, and property and casualty risk management.

Mennonite Church Buildings, Inc.—Provides investment and financing for institutions and congregations. Also owns the building occupied by MMA offices.

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

Fraternal benefits—a wide range of programs including: 1. matching grants to help local congregations aid members in need and to help meet needs in their communities, plus grants to help wtih health insurance premiums for missionaries and seminary students; and 2. educational resources to help congregations and small groups study stewardship and mutual aid issues including wellness, death and dying, the health care system, and more. These programs are made possible by MMA's special legal status as a fraternal benefit association. This allows money that would otherwise be paid as taxes to be used to benefit members without additional cost.

Personal protection— health insurance, life insurance, long-term care, disability, and physical damage coverage for autos

Group insurance— benefit programs for large and small groups

Financial services— investment opportunities through annuities and mutual funds, retirement programs, church loans, creative plans for supporting church-related missions and other charities, estate planning

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Date founded: 1945. Began as loan aid program for returning Civilian Public Service men following World War II.

Purpose and Function: Leads Mennonites and related groups toward greater practice of the biblical principles of stewardship and mutual aid. As an inter-Mennonite church organization, we offer members the opportunity to help each other by sharing financial risks and resources. To achieve this, MMA provides insurance products, financial services, charitable programs, and educational resources.

Groups served by MMA: MC, GC, MB, and churches with historical Anabaptist roots. MMA reports quarterly to the Mennonite Church General Board.

Publications: Sharing, quarterly 20-page magazine with people-oriented views for Mennonite Mutual Aid members, pastors, congregational mutual aid appointees, and others who are interested; The Tool Kit, bi-monthly newsletter about financial, health, lifestyle, and safety concerns for pastors, congregations, and others who are interested.

Staff: 225 in staff and field assignments.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND STATISTICS

Date of organization: 1920

Mission statement: MCC is an agency of the Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches in North America. MCC seeks to demonstrate God's love through committed women and men who work among people suffering from poverty, conflict, oppression, and natural disaster. MCC serves as a channel for interchange between churches and community groups where we work around the world and the North American churches who send us, so that all may grow and be transformed. MCC strives for peace, justice, and dignity of all people by sharing our experiences, resources, and faith in Jesus Christ.

Participating bodies: M and BIC conferences in the U.S. and Canada, as well as regional and provincial MCC organizations. For names of participating church bodies see MCC under codes for "Boards and Agencies" on page 6.

Thrift Shops and SELFHELP Crafts, MCC

Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) shops are the result of constituent concern for human need, both locally and globally. These shops are generally sponsored by local congregations and rely on local volunteer participation. The successful operation of the shops generates funds for the support of MCC's relief and development programs. It promotes job creation through MCC's SELFHELP Crafts (SHC) program.

Founded 1972 (Thrift Shops) and 1946 (SELFHELP). There are more than 120 MCC shops in the U.S. and Canada. MCC shops have a two-fold purpose: to meet local needs through the resale of used clothing and household items, and to link constituents and the general public to craft producers in developing countries by providing markets for artisans who would otherwise be unemployed or underemployed. Participating bodies: MCC.

Directory of Overseas Mennonite Churches and Programs

The following list of overseas Mennonite churches and programs was provided by the Council of International Ministries (CIM). Since CIM is an inter-Mennonite agency this listing includes churches and programs related to all of the participating Mennonite bodies in North America. The name of the specific sponsoring or fraternal North American organization is identified with each entry. Also listed for each is the name, address, and other information about the designated contact person.

For further information about the overseas church or program, such as number of members and congregations, leaders, names of North American workers, and other details, contact the sponsoring agency. Names and addresses of CIM member agencies are listed in the "Directory of Mennonite and Inter-Mennonite Projects." You may also contact Ron Yoder, secretary/treasurer of CIM, PO Box 370, Elkhart, IN 46515-0370 (219 294-7523).

Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies

This directory lists the Beachy Amish Church (BA) and the Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church (EP). These bodies relate informally to the Mennonite Church on a fraternal basis.

Within each body, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) as well as ministers who carry active responsibility (2). All other ministers are included only in the "Ministerial Directory" found with each body, after its organizational and congregational entries.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location or person. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations" section. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

For an example of a complete congregational listing in this directory see the first page of the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations."

Jubilee: God's Good News is a children's Sunday school curriculum that invites children and adults, through the Biblical story, to follow Jesus,
to learn and grow together to discover the power of the Holy Spirit to form faith inform minds, and transform lives.

Materials for ages 2 through grade 8 published by Brethren Press, Evangel Publishing House, Faith & Life Press, and Mennonite Publishing House.

Notes:

1. Conference totals are drawn from congregational reports. No attempt was made to project 100% totals for congregations who did not supply complete or accurate information.
2. Definitions:
   a. Members—All who have been baptized and have been received as members of congregations.
   b. Nonmembers—All (children, youth, and adults) who participate in congregational life but are not members
   c. Adherents—Total members and nonmembers

Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada was represented in previous reports as Ontario-Quebec and Western Ontario Conferences.

* Source of Effective Buying Income (EBI) is the congregational data collected by the Mennonite Yearbook and the annual August special edition of the Sales and Marketing Management magazine. Canadian EBI data is not included because beginning with the August 1990 issue, Sales & Marketing Management magazine no longer includes Canadian EBI data.

 Canadian EBI data is not available. (See note above.)

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412-887-8500 or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure the complete accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

All data on this table are for youth and students from congregations in North American conferences affiliated with Mennonite Church General Assembly (see list of conferences on Table 22); students from other Mennonite groups (including smaller Mennonite Church conferences and overseas conferences) and other-than-Mennonite students are not included in these numbers.

Numbers for Mennonite colleges and seminaries are for full-time students only; numbers for other colleges and universities may include some part-time students. (Information on attendance at other colleges and universities gathered by Student and Young Adult Services of Mennonite Board of Missions.)

Separate figures reported for Goshen College regular program and degree-completion program.

In addition to the Mennonite Church students of Table 23, the data in this table includes all other students. The first column for each school lists full-time students, and in the second column part-time students are added. Goshen College 1992 includes 33 degree-completion students, 1993 includes 35.

Some of the schools, especially the seminaries, have a significant ministry to students not taking course work for credit. These audit and extension students are not included in the numbers reported here.

Mennonite Church Ministerial Directory

This directory lists all ordained, licensed, or commissioned men and women who are members of the Mennonite Church in North America. It includes ministers of Mennonite Church conferences who do, and those who do not, participate in the program of Mennonite Church General Assembly. (These are from congregations listed in "Directory of Conferences and Congregations," "Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations," and "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences.") The information provided for each minister is: name, four-digit individual identification code (the code number is assigned to insure correct identity of each minister, especially on those occasions when the name is identical or similar to another name in the directory), name of spouse, address, telephone (while the home information is requested, some ministers prefer an office listing), office, year of ordination, function, year of birth, congregational name and number (if person carries function 1), conference affiliation. See example below. Where information is not available or not applicable, it is omitted.

Anabaptist Vision, by Harold S Bender, Herald Press, 1944, 48 pages, $1.75 ($2.75 in Canada). This booklet is a reprint of the 1943 presidential address Harold Bender gave to The American Society of Church History. This defining statement found three biblical principles at the core of Anabaptism: 1. Christianity as discipleship, 2. The church as an accountable community, and 3. An ethic of love and nonresistance.

The Mennonite Encyclopedia, edited by Harold S Bender, Herald Press, Volumes I-IV, 900-1184 pages per volume, $50-$80 per volume ($65-$104 in Canada). These volumes published from 1955 to 1959 were Bender's crowning achievement in scholarship and church service.

The Recovery of the Anabaptist Vision, edited by Guy F Hershberger, Herald Press, 1957. Out of print; check libraries or access via microfilm. Mid-fifties essays of church leaders and scholars reflecting on the Anabaptist Vision.

Becoming Anabaptist, by J Denny Weaver, Herald Press, 1987, 176 pages, $14.95 ($19.50 in Canada). Visits the multiple origins of Anabaptism and arrives at Bender's three points, now called "regulative principles." Plus, Weaver found a fourth one, separation.

What Mennonites Believe, by J C Wenger, Herald Press, 1991, 96 pages, $3.95 ($5.25 in Canada). Popular booklet in the Herald Press Mennonite Faith Series which explains the Mennonite origins and beliefs based on Anabaptist Vision scholarship.

Articles and Periodicals. A special issue concerning the neo-Anabaptist movement of the mid-fifties appeared in Conrad Grebel Review (Spring, 1990). "The Spiritual Poverty of the Anabaptist Vision," by Stephen Dintaman hit a vital nerve of churchwide discussion in Conrad Grebel Review (Spring, 1992), Mennonite Reporter (October 19, 1992), Gospel Herald (February 23, 1993), and The Mennonite (June 22, 1993). Finally, Gospel Herald is planning a special issue on the Anabaptist Vision this spring (1994).

Readings selected and annotated by Levi Miller, director Mennonite Historical Committee. Books are available through Provident and other religious bookstores (prices may vary).
